WHITE BURGUNDY

La Boudriotte

Chassagne-Montrachet Premier Cru, 2019

Domaine Gagnard-Delagrange

A classic white Burgundy from a family domaine in the village. Expect ripe orchard fruit, a round, rich texture and a stony, nutty finish.

GRAPE	REGION	ALCOHOL	OAK	MADE
Chardonnay	Côte de Beaune	13.8%	20% new	9 barrels
100%	Burgundy, France	2019 vintage	French barrels, 228 L	About 3,000 bottles

Taste profile

Sweetness	●○○○○	Dry
Body	●●●●○	Medium to full
Acidity	●●●○○	Moderate
Oak	●●○○○	Subtle, creamy

The typical style of this site in a warm vintage. A guide, not a measurement of this bottle.

What you may smell and taste

Yellow apple · Pear · Peach · Lemon peel · Hazelnut · Flint

Barrel aging adds a little vanilla, toast and cream. One drinker on an older vintage: "Minty, stony, and full of apple and pear fruit."

When to drink it

2024 2025 2026 2027 2028 2029 2030 2031 2032

In its window now and good into the early 2030s. A seeping cork or deep amber color can signal oxidation, a known white Burgundy risk.

Serve

50 to 55°F. Cool, not icy.

Decant

20 to 30 minutes if it seems tight. Longer can dull its freshness.

What to eat with it

Roast chicken

Seared scallops

Lobster with butter

Comté

Creamy mushroom risotto

The acidity keeps buttery dishes from feeling heavy. The weight stands up to roast chicken and nutty Comté.

Burgundy's ladder

Grand Cru
Premier Cru
Village
Regional

Second rung of four

The family

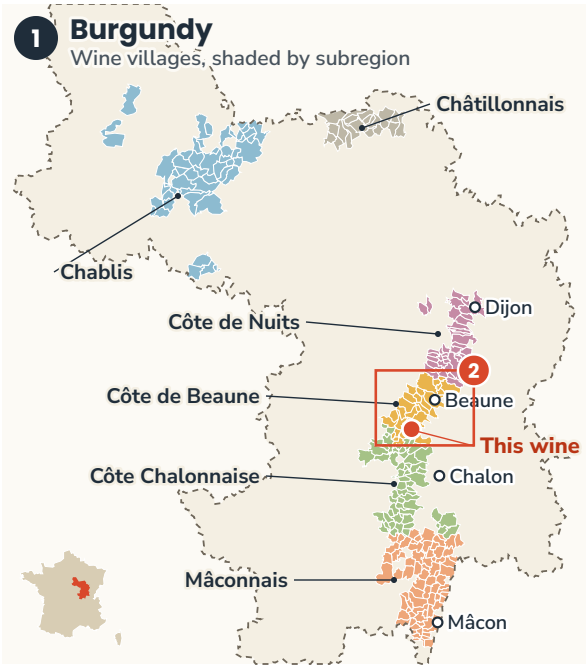

The domaine dates to 1959, when Jacques Gagnard married Marie-Josèphe Delagrange. Most of the vines later passed to their daughters, Laurence and Claudine, of Fontaine-Gagnard and Blain-Gagnard. Grandson Marc-Antonin Blain makes the small remaining core in a traditional style.

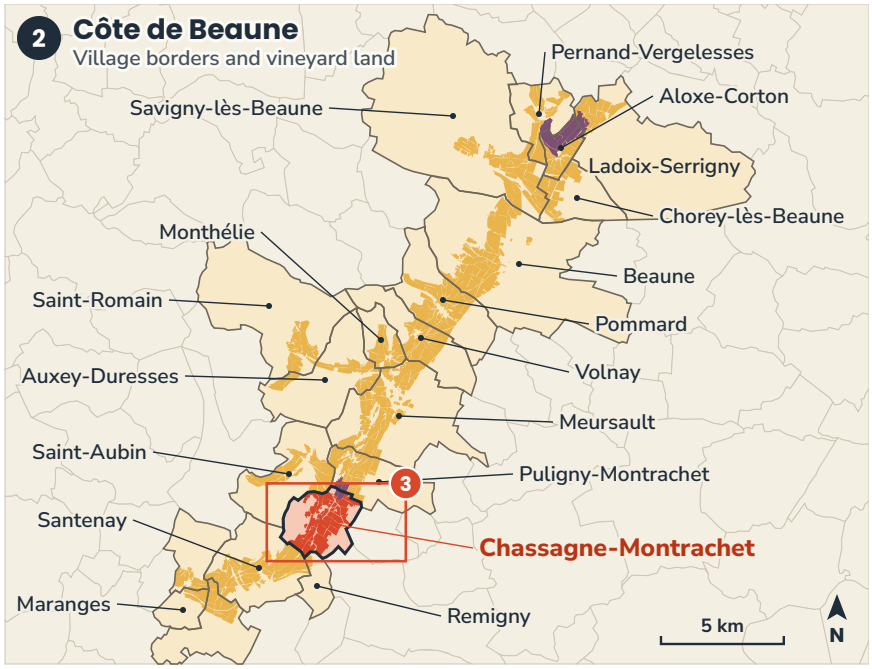

The vintage

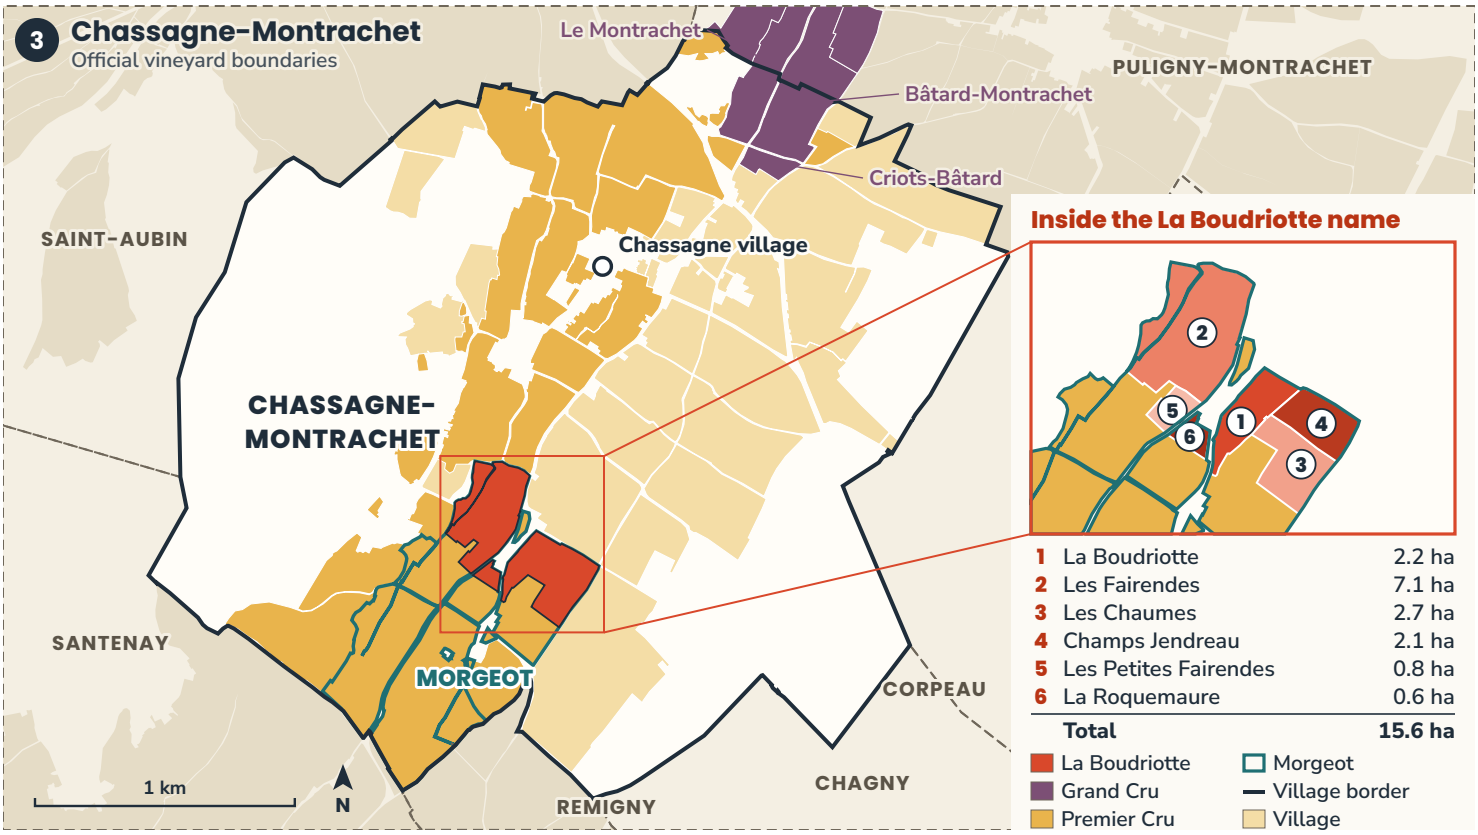

2019 was warm and dry. Spring frost and poor flowering cut the crop, and what survived came in ripe and concentrated. Whites turned out rich, with good balance and freshness.

Where it grows

From all of Burgundy down to one vineyard

The spot

About a kilometer south of the village, close to where Chassagne meets Santenay and Remigny. The slope is gentle, faces east to southeast, and sits near 240 meters.

The soil

Clay-rich with stony limestone. The clay gives whites more weight and a rounder shape than the leaner, flintier sites in the village. Pinot Noir grows here too.

The name

Six plots can use the La Boudriotte name, and all six sit inside Morgeot. This wine comes from old vines in three sections of the vineyard, which the map does not separate.

Maps: INAO vineyard delimitations (Licence Ouverte) via OpenDataWine; commune outlines from france-geojson, drawn to the vineyard parcels where they exist and simplified elsewhere. For orientation, not a legal boundary. Text: Bottle Brief; Winebow (US importer); Inside Burgundy; Decanter; Becky Wasserman & Co.; Delectable (drinker quote). Serving temperature is general guidance.